Distinguished Shades: Americans Whose Lives Live On, Louis Filler, Belfry Publications, 1992, 0963152718, 9780963152718, 279 pages. DISTINGUISHED SHADES: AMERICANS WHOSE LIVES LIVE ON, by LOUIS FILLER caps a literary & historical career of probing American crises to discover their import. Dr. Filler here studies a spectrum of representative Americans to reveal events which "common knowledge" often evades or smooths over with euphemisms. DR. BENJAMIN RUSH, supreme patriot, civic & medical leader, may have been responsible for many deaths in the 1793 Yellow Fever epidemic. SAMUEL F. B. MORSE is wrongly remembered, only as "inventor" of the telegraph. ANNE ROYALL, touted by "feminists" was not one of them. JOSEPHINE SHAW LOWELL is ill-remembered, though she towers among the greatest women. WOODROW WILSON, famed for his integrity, proves more complex on forthright consideration. Although the LEO FRANK case is remembered for its supreme injustice, hero-GOVERNOR SLATON of Georgia, crucial figure in the tragedy, lacks a biographer. And so others - UPTON SINCLAIR, unknown as Southerner, THEODORE DREISER, falsely seen as a "Progressive," ROBERT M. LAFOLLETTE, demeaned in his own Wisconsin, TOM DEWEY...& many more, prove that History is "boring" only if the reader is led astray or reads wrongly.
